Alice's Adventures in Wonderland by Lewis Carroll

CD 1

1

All in the golden afternoon
Full leisurely we glide;
For both our oars, with little skill,
By little arms are plied,
While little hands make vain pretence
Our wanderings to guide.

Ah, cruel Three! In such an hour
Beneath such dreamy weather,
To beg a tale of breath too weak
To stir the tiniest feather!
Yet what can one poor voice avail

勒胡: 歌聲魅影

This nineteenth-century French thriller tells of the mysterious Erik, grotesque and elusive 'phantom', who hides himself from the world in the labyrinthine bowels of the Paris Opera and entices with his angelic voice the beautiful opera singer Christine. Her abduction prompts a dramatic search not only for her, but also for the truth about her strange captor.

內文

It was the evening on which Messieurs Debienne and Poligny, the managers of the Opera, were giving a last gala performance to mark their retirement. They rushed in amid great confusion, some giving vent to forced and unnatural laughter, others to cries of terror. Sorelli looked around angrily at the mad and tumultuous crowd. It was little Jammes who gave the explanation in a trembling voice: 'It's the ghost!' And she locked the door.

Sorelli was very superstitious. She shuddered when she heard little Jammes speak of the ghost, called her a 'silly little fool' and then, as she was the first to believe in ghosts in general, and the Opera ghost in particular, at once asked for details: "Ave you seen 'im?"

'As plainly as I see you now!' said little Jammes.

And they all began to talk together. The ghost had appeared to them in the shape of
